

"There's a Light"

*There's a light in distance,
burning through the night.
As storm clouds descend,
I keep it in my sight.
Oh, it shines like a beacon
and leads me to tomorrow.
There's a light in the distance
that gives me hope tonight.*

I've spent half a lifetime running from my fears.
I've kept myself away from those who love.
The night has been endless;
it's lasted for years.
But now I can see...

*There's a light in distance,
burning through the night.
As storm clouds descend,
I keep it in my sight.
Oh, it shines like a beacon
that guides me through my sorrow.
There's a light in the distance
I'm moving toward tonight.*

I've climbed a million mountains with chains on my feet.
I've stumbled through the world
lost and empty.
I've longed for redemption
'cause the dark still runs deep.
And now I can see...

*There's a light in distance,
burning through the night.
As storm clouds descend,
I keep it in my sight.
Oh, it shines like a beacon
leads me to tomorrow.
There's a light in the distance
that gives me hope tonight.*

My better angels at last are free.
I once was blinded, but now I see...

*There's a light in distance,
burning through the night.
As storm clouds descend,
I keep it in my sight.
Oh, it shines like a beacon
that leads me to tomorrow.
There's a light in the distance,
and hope is burning bright.*

Lyrics by Jason Spraggins
Music by Matt Glickstein